

Terms of use Students Come And Go. Terms also apply to the Internshiptool

If you create an account, that gives access to your personal information and the information of the institution you want to visit, you explicitly agree to the following:

- All information you provide is 'legally' yours and contains no information of other persons, unless you have an agreement (for example: a letter of recommendation).
- You give permission to use the provided information for your enrollment (to the selected courses/minors/internships, etc.) at the institution you selected. Personal information you provide will not be used for any other purpose.
- You declare that the information was provided voluntarily.
- You understand that you are in control of all information you provide to this web application. You can add, alter, renew and delete information. However: the given information should be complete and correct at the moment your enrollment is approved and during the time you are actually participating in courses. If not, your application will be canceled.
- You cannot delete or alter the courses once they are approved (enrolled). The same goes (of course) for evaluations, grades, etc.
- Information you provide is only visible for you and the responsible officials at the institution you are enrolled for.
- All "no longer necessary" privacy sensitive information will be removed after a period of 1 (one) year. Think of uploaded files, address information, emergency contacts, etc.
- For administrative, statistical, and other reasons it might be necessary to store some information for a longer time, like: your name, date of birth, nationality, name of the sending institution, the courses you took, student number(s), country info, grades, evaluations and other non-personal information. If you want this information to be removed as well: please contact the institution.
- Privacy regulations and laws demand that you agree to all terms.
